GONE TO JURY

The argument of A. G. M. Robertson for plaintiff in the libel suit of Ballou against Parker was concluded this afternoon at about half past two, and Judge Lindsay at once began reading his instructions to the jury. The case occupied all of the last two weeks and all of this week so far. In closing Robertson called special attention of the jury to the permanence of the alleged libel, declaring that it was set forth in imperishable records of the

First Circuit Court and would remain for the perusal of all future generations as the sworn statement of Sam Parker. He also declared that the prominence of Parker in the community made the libel specially damaging, and he urged that the plaintiff was entitled to a substantial verdict. The jury is now out.

A PROBLEM OF LANGUAGE

EXACT INTERPRETATION OF A FEW HAWAIIAN WORDS WHICH ARE FOUND IN MANY DEEDS BECOMES A MATTER OF IMPORTANCE TO OWNERS OF PROPERTY ALONG NUUANU AND OTHER STREAMS THROUGHOUT THE TERRITORY.

The correct translation of the Hawaiian words "i kahawai" or "i ka kahawai" and "ma ka kahawai" have become an issue of importance in the matter of settling the title to land in Nuuanu valley, for which the estate of S. G. Wilder, Limited, petitioner for a title. Lyle A. Dickey, examiner of titles for the court, has made a report in which the phrases in question are interpreted to mean to the "edge of stream," while other opinions are that the middle of the stream is the boundary line intended to be indicated. C. Alexander court surveyor, has made a report to Judge Weaver of the land court giving the following:

"The examiner's translations 'along edge of stream,' and 'down edge of stream' are certainly wrong, for neither the words lili (edge) or makai (down) are used in either of these descriptions.

"That the expressions 'i ka kahawai' and 'ma ka kahawai' were intended to mean to the center of the stream and along the center of the stream I think in most cases is hardly open to doubt. These are the expressions always used in the original kuleana surveys for describing boundaries along a stream. Except in rare instances, such an expression as 'waena o ka kahawai' (in the middle of the stream) is never used. The fact is that the distances, particularly in the case of the two kuleanas under consideration, do not take to the present center of the stream does not make any material difference. My experience is that the compass surveyors of fifty years ago rarely extended their courses to the middle of the stream, but always terminated them at points where a compass could be easily set up."

Alexander quotes a decision by Judge Cooley to the following effect: "There never was any doubt that, except on the large navigable rivers the boundary of the owners of the banks is the middle line of the river; and while some courts have held that this was the rule on all fresh water streams, large and small others have held to the doctrine that the title to the bed of the stream below low water mark is in the state, while conceding to the owners of the banks all riparian rights."

The proposition affects many owners of real property along streams or rivers in the Territory, as there are numerous titles which contain the same phrases as are used in the title under examination.

THE WILL OF SAMUEL C. ALLEN

CASTIRON PROVISIONS ABOUT GEORGE ALLEN IN THE ONE WHICH WAS PROBATED.

Some careful examination of the will of the late S. C. Allen and the probate records in his case are being made with a view to preparing for a possible contest of the will by George C. Allen, who has returned to Honolulu after a long absence and is reported to have employed Attorney Alexander of San Francisco to investigate the matter for him. The Allen estate was a very big one and George Allen had large expectations in it at one time. S. C. Allen made a number of wills, in some of which the possible contestant is believed to have been well remembered. The one which was probated has the following to say as to him:

"I give, devise and bequeath unto George C. Allen, late of Honolulu aforesaid and now supposed to be of Seattle, State of Washington, the sum of one dollar and expressly direct and provide that said George C. Allen shall otherwise receive nothing whatsoever, either directly or indirectly from my estate or any part of portions thereof. And I expressly declare to all whom it may concern that I owe the said George C. Allen nothing and have executed no instrument or writing whatsoever under which he could or would receive and profit, benefit or emolument whatsoever excepting certain prior wills which are hereby expressly annulled, and excepting certain unrecorded articles of adoption dated November 12, 1877 between myself and my wife Bathsheba M. Allen on the one part and said D. K. Fyfe on the other part whereby I and my said wife assume to adopt the said George C. Allen as our own child and as to said articles of adoption I do hereby declare that I have repudiated and do hereby repudiate said articles of adoption as being illegal void and of no effect among other reasons for that the same are unrecorded and for that said George C. Allen has failed, neglected and refused to perform the obligations imposed upon him under and by virtue of said article of adoption and otherwise and by gross misconduct has ceased to have any claim morally or otherwise upon my estate or bounty by virtue of said articles or otherwise. And I hereby declare that the devise of One Dollar herein made to the said George C. Allen is all that I leave to him of my estate real, personal or mixed and this is my real, personal or mixed and this is my will respecting George C. Allen even though the said articles of adoption are legal and in full force and effect."

The probated will was filed in April 1903, a few days after the death of Allen. It was witnessed by W. A. Kinney, G. H. Robertson and E. A. R. Ross. George Allen was away at the time and no contest was offered. Beyond the examination of the records which is now going on nothing has been done to start a contest yet, but it is said that there may soon be a move to open the matter.

WHAT TOTEMISM IN ALASKA MEANS

NEW LIGHT ON AN INTERESTING AND LITTLE UNDERSTOOD SUBJECT—BADGE OF CLAN OR TRIBE

It is interesting to note that totemism is found not only in Alaska, but among the North American Indians, the aborigines of Australia, the Hottentots of Africa and even the hill tribes of India. Totems are also common among the Samoans.

Broadly, the totem is the badge of a clan or tribe; but it signifies a great deal more than mere political or social alliance. It is not only a tribal emblem, but also a family signal; not merely a symbol of nationality, but also an expression of religion; not simply a bond of union among primitive people but also a regulator of the marriage laws and of other social institutions, says a writer in the House keeper.

A totem has been defined as "a class of material objects which is sacred, regarded with superstitious respect, believing that there exists between him and every member of the class an intimate and special relation."

Among the Ojibway Indians there are no fewer than twenty-three different totems. Nine of these are quadrupeds, making out the wolf, the bear, the beaver and other clans, eight are birds, five are fishes and one is the snake.

Some extraordinary superstitions regarding totems prevail in Samoa. Thus it is believed that if a Turtle-man eats of a turtle, he will grow very ill and the voice of the turtle will be heard in his inside, says: "He ate me; I am killing him." If a Banana-man uses a banana leaf for a cap he becomes bald. If a Butterfly-man catches a butterfly it strikes him dead. If a Fowl-man eats a fowl, delirium and death result. And so on—all going to show that the totem has something of the quality of a fetish as well as the significance of a family emblem.

Regarding totemism, it is noted that the relation of mutual help and protection includes also the totem itself; that is to say, if a man takes care of his totem, he expects the totem to return the compliment.

If the totem is a dangerous animal, it must not hurt his clansmen. The Scorpion-men at Sengambir declare that the most deadly scorpions will run over their bodies without hurting them. There is a Snake clan in Australia which holds to a similar belief. Among the Crocodile clan of the Ibochuanas if a man is bitten by a crocodile, or even has water splashed on him by one, he is expelled from the clan as one esteemed unworthy by the totem.

There will be no indictment of any of those in charge at the police station, on account of the matter of the Muller salary warrant, which was mysteriously cashed for a larger sum than Muller claims to have either earned or received. The Grand Jury completed its investigation of William Henry or any of the others concerned. The jury will make its final report tomorrow and will be discharged by Judge De Bolt. New indictments will be found, it is stated, against the Japanese of Honolulu Plantation who were indicted for conspiracy to incite a strike, etc., the former indictment having been knocked out.

TANTALUS TREES FELLED

from travelers from every part of the world for never has there been a travel-sated appetite so fabled that it could resist the beauties of glimpses of ocean and woodland between the vistas of eucalyptus and kiawe with which Tantalus is clothed.

There will be two propositions for prospective purchasers of the Tantalus wood. The Coney estate will consider offers either for the trees as they stand or if the purchasers prefer, the estate will cut and cord the wood on the land. Much of the forest to be sold will be difficult of access for along by the "hog's-back" and in other places the hauling of the felled timber to the road will be attended by considerable difficulty even after the roads are constructed.

There is a story behind the deforestation of the Tantalus slopes which will be remembered with regret by some of the older citizens. The trees were planted many years ago by Commissioner Jaeger, then of the Department of Agriculture, on the understanding that the land belonged to the government. Thus the peak of Tantalus, the land surrounding the lake beyond the peak, the edge of Maunaloa and the head of Paua were beautified at an expense to the public which will now be lost. There have been different propositions for the public acquisition of the Coney property, but they came to naught.

The appeal to the woodman to "spare that tree" will come a little late now for the glory of Tantalus seems to be destined for the woodpile.

RESTORER TO LEAVE HONOLULU

WILL GO TO SAN FRANCISCO TO GO ON DRY DOCK—WILL BE STATIONED AT HONOLULU.

It is expected that the cableship Restorer will go to San Francisco within the course of a couple of months. The vessel will have to be sent to the dry dock for a cleaning. She has been in the waters of the warmer climes for some time, so her bottom is getting foul. She will not go to San Francisco to be stationed, for Honolulu is to be her regular port.

There is also a possibility that she may be subsequently sent to Shanghai for dry docking, as the cost of that operation forms a material consideration, and the dry docking at Shanghai is understood to be considerably less than that in San Francisco.

ANNIE JOHNSON SAILED TODAY. The bark Annie Johnson got away for San Francisco at 2 o'clock this afternoon. She had 27,500 bags of sugar and some empty drums, barrels and carboys. She had five passengers.

AN OLD STORY. "Van Brush says he is wedded to his art."

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "But they don't get on very well together."
